BROKEN HEARTS.

Man seeks for pleasure, fame, and rank in his station of life. His prime inclination is to gain dominino o'er his fellow-men. Avarice is a vice which has broken many a talented and giffed man's heart. We have those whose hearts have never been crushed by any great weight of sorrow or disappoint. ment; in other words, those happy-go-licely people, who take it of sorrow or disappoint. ment; in other words, those happy-go-licely people, who take it of sorrow or disappoint. Ment; in the fertile imagination of the idea of people's hearts being broken. To their minds the person with a broken heart lives only in the fertile imagination of the novelist or the fandful poet. We often see a man who should be content with his surroundings, sigh for wealth and fame. When these men should be happy in the society of wife and children, hey are wishing for the lixuries which only the rich can enjoy. He gradually takes his wife into taking his view of things, and they struggle and toil against adversaries, and at his wife into taking his view of things, and they struggle and toil against adversaries, and at the struggle and toil against adversaries, and they struggle and toil against adversaries, and they struggle and toil against adversaries, and they struggle and to a whiriwind of pleasure, and are apt to laugh with scorn, when they look buck at the simple home comforts which so delighted them in bygone days. EVENING EXERCISES. The graduating exercises of the Shenandoah grammar schools, class of '91, were hold in the theatre in the evening. The heatre was crowded by the relatives and riends of the graduates. The exercises were of a very interesting and pleasing character and it is regretted that space will not permit a more detailed account at this ime. The publication of the prize essays of the junior exhibition, and other important matters, precludes the possibility of giving the exercises of the evening full justice, but some of the literary gems of the evening will be published in these columns in due time.

Rev. John Gruhler, of the German Lutheran church, opened the evening session with prayer and closed it with a benediction.

Superintendent Freeman acted as direcor of exercises. Miss Annie E. Coogan directed the musical part of the programme and Miss Jean C. Glover was the pianist. The following shows the material of the programme and the names of the graduates: Choruses, "Welcome" and "Good Night."

S. A. Beddall, president of the School Board, presented the diplomas to the graduates just before the closing chorus. The presentation was accompanied by a brief, but very appropriate address.

Among those who occupied seats upon the stage with the graduates were School Directors Muldoon, Conry, Bellis, Gable, Hanna, Trezise, Owens, Baird, Stein, Beddall, Butts, Bachman and Knebel. School Directors-elect Gallagher and Williams and Tressurer Lamb.

MORPHINE KILLED HIM. Judge Houk's Death Blamed on the Phys

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 29 .- The sensational death of Judge Houk does not end the sensations in connection therewith. It is said here now that his death was caused by a dose of morphine administered by the attendant physician after the arsenic had been removed.

The story goes that Judge Houk had completely recovered from the effects of the poison, except that he was weak and

He seemed unable to sleep, and the question was broached of giving a dose of morphins. It is said that the family physician advised against it, saying that Judge Houk had heart disease, and that it would be very dangerous to give him the powerful drug..

The morphine was not given the Judge then, but later the physician who had advocated it decided to administer the drug when the other was gone. This he did by injection during the night. The Judge went off to sleep, a sleep from which he never woke, as the sequel shows.

A son of Judge Houk said that his

This may lead to a hot debate between the doctors. None of Houk's family has said anything about the matter publicly and the son made the remark to a friend.

The funeral of Judge Houk took place shortly after noon, and was attended by an immense crowd. Congressman Enlos was here, Senator Harris of Memphis, and Cullen of Illinois, and a number of other Congressmen came, including Orisp of Georgia. Bishop Joyce conducted the funeral exercises.

BRILLIANT RECEPTION.

Notable Event on White Street Last Evening.

There was a social gathering last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Titman, on South White street, in honor of their guests, Mr. George R. Brown, Superintendent and General Manager of the Fall Brook Coal Company's Railways Mrs. Brown and daughter, Miss Florence

The Trout Run Railroad, of which Mr. Titman is a prominent official, connects at Cammel, Lycoming county, with the railreads of which Mr. Brown is General Managar.

RECEIVING GUESTS.

The two splendid connecting parlors of the residence were brilliantly illuminated and Mr. and Mrs. Titman cordially received the guests, among whom were C. M. Lawler, Superintendent of the P. & R. R. Co's Williamsport division; Wellington Bertolette, Assistant Superintendent of the P. & R. R. Williamsport division, Mrs. W. Bertolette and daughter, of Mahanoy Plane; Mr. Ben. Bertolette, Superintendent at Atlantic City; Mr. and and Mrs. M. McMillen, Mahanoy City; Mrs. Wm. L. Torbert and daughter, Victoria, Girard Manor; Edward Kumner and Misses Hattie and Katle Kutzner, Shamokin; William H. Lewis, Wm. Penn; Mr. and Mrs. William Stein, L. M. Titman, Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Keim, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Boyer, Misses Belle Grant, Virgie Hollopeter, Mame Wasley, Mame B Boyer, Messrs. Dr. Bordner, Hesser Zulick, John Grant and George H. Krick.

At 7 o'clock the guests partook of one of the most elaborate suppers ever served in the town. The tables groaned under the burden of everything calculated to meet the wishes of an epicure. There was an abundance of fine brook trout, many of them measuring twelve inches and over. The menn was a lengthy one and Caterer W. J. Lloyd made good use of the carte lanche given him by the host and hosters. The liquid refreshments were the choicest the market affords and some rare brands Plank Ridge Lodge No. 880, I. O. O. F. were among them.

After supper the guests adjourned to the gorgeously arranged pariors and enjoyed a most pleasant sociable until nearly midnight. Misses Bertolette and Wasley, and Mrs. Keim presided at the piano alternately during the evening and Mr. and Miss Kutzner gave several vocal duetts, which were enthusiastically encored. There was also singing by the gentlemen and when the vocal chords failed to respond the terpsichorean art was called into play. Messrs. Lawler and Bertolette made their presence exceedingly companionable and those who had the good fortune to meet them last night no doubt hope to meet hem again in the near future.

The reception was an agreeable surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Brown, and their daughter, Miss Florence, was almost carried away with enthusiasm. The present is her first visit to the coal region and she said that she hadn't the slightest idea that so much enjoyment could be found in the 'dusky diamond' fields.

To cap the climax, the Washington Cornet Band serenaded the guests at about half past ten o'clock and rendered several . excellent selections in front and inside of the residence. The randitions were unusually good and the members of the band were highly complimented by the visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Titman were warmly congratulated. The reception was certainly one which can only have a fountain-head in unbounded liberality.

Of course Caterer "Billy" Lloyd feels proud of what he accomplished. If any doubt existed as to his ability in his line he dispelled it effectually last night. A votre sante, Mr. and Mrs. Titman.
